Map of Oria Altamura and Corato with Comments from Brunella

'Hi everyone, I'm sharing a map to help explain the pilgrimage that Mystical Mothers of priests in the Divine Will have organised. On the right side of the map you can see Brindisi, and I've marked Oria with a red dot. You'll also see Altamura and Matera highlighted, with Corato clearly labelled. As you can see, these places form almost a triangle.

Matera is my hometown, where I was born and lived up to the age of 27, and it's also where Fr Angelo Sardone, the Rogationist who wrote the book connected to this pilgrimage, lives, although Fr Angelo was born in Altamura, which is one of the key stops on the journey. Just to make the link clear: Melania Calvat, who is connected with Altamura, was the visionary of Our Lady of La Salette.

A good travel option would be to fly into Brindisi, rent a car, and drive to Oria, ideally finding accommodation there (unless you prefer a different base). On the second day, when visiting Altamura, you could either stay overnight there or choose to stay in Matera instead. Matera is one of the oldest towns in the world; it's where The Passion of the Christ was filmed and where the most recent series of The Chosen (the Crucifixion scenes) was filmed last June. It's a very characteristic place with many B&B options. Matera forato is one hour, Matera Oria is one hour, by car. For the return journey, one suggestion is to fly back from Bari, which is closer to Corato (around 30 minutes).

The main consideration is car rental logistics, as this would mean returning the car to a different airport. Alternatively, you could fly in and out of the same airport (Brindisi or Bari) and adjust the driving accordingly. Another option is to fly into Bari first, then drive to Oria, Altamura, and finally Corato.

The trip can be done autonomously and extended beyond three days if you'd like to make it more of a holiday as well. What Mystical Mothers of priests in the Divine Will have organised, however, are three specific days with key events. The events on Days 1 and 3 take up most of the day, while the Day 2 event is shorter, allowing more flexibility'
